LESSON OBJECTIVE(s)

1.) EXPLAIN three reasons why history should be studied

2.) CONNECT identity to history

PART I: WARM UP

DIRECTIONS: Respond to the Warm Up question. Make note of any meaningful comments in the following mini-discussion.

PART II: BIG QUESTION #2

DIRECTIONS: Respond to the question below in the space provided. We will first discuss your response in pairs, and then have a mini-discussion with the whole class. Make note of any meaningful comments made during the discussion, as well as the “BIG IDEA” slide on the board

After listening to your peers, and watching Ki-Seok’s response, what do you think is the relationship between history and identity?

Does the connection between history and identity impact your understanding of why we should study history? Yes? No? How? Why?

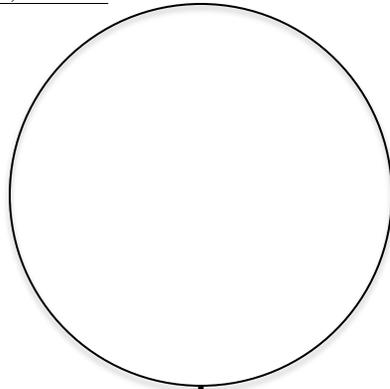

HOMEWORK

ACTIVITY RATIONALE & DIRECTIONS: As a way to help the class get to know each other better, and to increase our understanding of the connection between identity and history, you’re going to complete an “Identity Map.” In the identity map, you are to list on the left side all of the aspects of your identity that you believe make up who you truly are. On the right side, you are to list how other people may perceive you according to each section.

Use the example on the following page to help you complete this task.

IDENTITY MAP OF:

What do you believe are aspects of your identity? I.e. "the things that make you who you are." (list below)

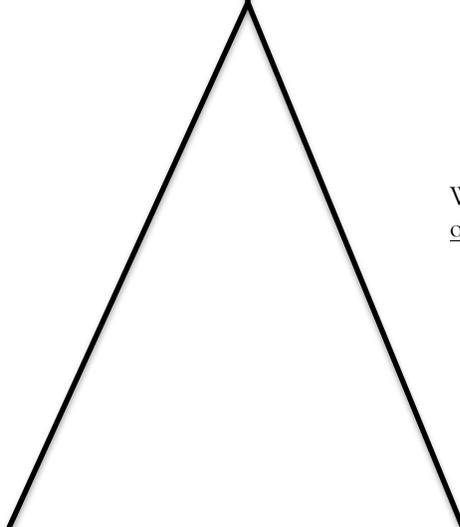

What things would a perfect stranger list as aspects of your identity?? (list below)

What things would an acquaintance list as aspects of your identity?? (list below)

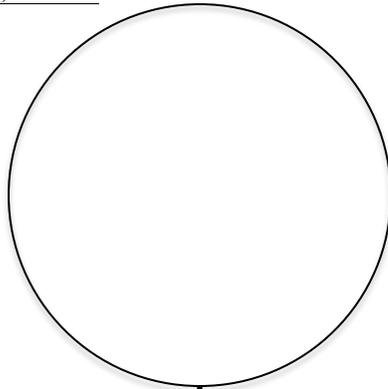

What things would a friend list as aspects of your identity? (list below)

What things would an close friend or family member list as aspects of your identity? (list below)
